Dear God,

It's hard being the oldest kid in the family. My parents are always expecting me to help take care of my little siblings.

They always get away with not cleaning their rooms or putting their laundry away or unloading the dishwasher. No fair!

It's about to get even worse. My brother, Jaden, is about to start kindergarten at my school. That means my parents will want me to watch after him or the bus and walk him to his classroom each day. Don't they understand that I just want to hang out with my friends, and not be responsible for anyone else?...

Dear God,

Today, we got a new kid in our class. Her name is Isabella.

She just moved here, and she definitely sticks out like a sore thumb. Her clothes are not very fashionable, and she said she listens to opera music. She doesn't even know who Taylor Swift is! Has she been living under a rock?

I'm sure she misses the friends she had back home, though. I've noticed her reading a book herself on the playground the past few days at recess. I want to talk to her, but I'm afraid my friends will make fun of me...

What to Do:

Print on paper and cut apart, one set for each Small Group.

Dear God,

At church, we've been talking about helping others. I've been thinking a lot about the people we see at this one intersection in town. Every time we drive through it, there are people holding signs and asking for help. It makes me sad to see them and think about the fact that they don't have a house like I do. But I'm not sure how I can help...

Dear God,

Ever since my grandma died a few months ago, my grandpa hasn't been himself. He misses having Grandma around so much. He used to go on walks every day and get together with friends a lot. Now, he seems to keep to himself. I don't want him to feel so sad and lonely. What could I do for him?
